Minority Gov't Spectre Raised

St. Laurent Declares Again It's Liberals or Nobody

REGINA, April 19.—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent raised the spectre of minority government last night in appealing for support from CCF-dominated Saskatchewan in the federal election which, he said, will come "within the next few months."

As he had done in the Social Credit election of Alberta, he said, "Either the Liberal party wins the election or no party will win." He spoke at a public meeting in Regina.

No CCF adherent could "honestly believe the CCF has the slightest chance of coming within 100 miles of a majority in the next parliament," he said.

As for the Progressive Conservatives, he said, "The people of Canada do not want to go back to the 19th century." That party got "terribly excited about winning one by-election in my province (but) there is still a Liberal majority in the vast majority of the constituencies of Quebec."

Mr. St. Laurent's statement about the election within a few months brought from sources close to him the explanation that he did not mean this to indicate three or four years but that it could embrace the autumn as well as the summer.

He warned that difficult years lie ahead for Canada.

"We need a government with a majority; nothing could be worse than a parliament in which no party had no majority and there was no stability and no confidence."

There may be some who who don't believe that minorities are perils, but I ask you whether you would rather have a Liberal government which knew what it was doing and where it was going than a parliament in which no party could do anything effective and the government would have no idea where it was going.

MONEY AND TIME is saved by these two welders, who fly to their jobs at Devon oil fields every day. Pilot Bill Parkinson (right), figures on a cut of $12 weekly in gas and oil over conventional automobile, as well as 45 minutes each way of the 35-mile round trip. Welding company co-owner Herman Edidol, shown with Parkinson after day's work, likes to fly-commute to the oil riggings, which are just a "jump" from where they land the light plane.

Oil Worker Saves Money By Flying to His Job

By Paul Hurnmes

"Gas 'er up, and let's fly to work."

Bill Parkinson does just that and six days a week to get to his welding job at the Devon oil fields, 17 miles west of here.

It was driving . . . and it's cheaper," he says enthusiastically.

$12 WEEK ESTIMATE

A welder with the Alberta welding Co., Parkinson figures on a saving of $12 a week on gas and oil over operating his own car, as well as a time saving of 45 minutes each way.
